

NATIONAL BLACK CANADIANS SUMMIT

VIRTUAL SUMMIT SERIES 2021

Building the path to NBCS 2022

The National Black Canadians Summit is the creation of a dedicated organizing committee with representatives from the African Nova Scotian community, bringing together business and community leaders across the country. The initial National Black Canadians Summit resulted in the creation of the Canadian Strategic Action Plan for the International Decade for People of African Descent: 2015-2024.

A series of virtual events will allow a national dialogue that will bring forth concrete actions for lasting impact in the community. These virtual rendez-vous will reunite youth and adults from all over Canada and offer discussions so all voices are heard.

NBCS 2022

Using the African Nova Scotian context to understand how racial discrimination has been persistent throughout Canadian history, during NBCS 2022, we will be creating a new and robust set of recommendations to guide policies that impact the lives of BIPOC in Canada.

YOUR VOICE WILL BE HEARD

Eliminating racial discrimination is a shared responsibility. Canadians engaging in the discussions around racial inequality and access. Let this virtual series be the occasion to pause, reflect and prioritize. Let us have these discussions and share ideas which will move us towards action.

The series will consist of dynamic and progressive sessions with a variety of perspectives, as well as a safe space for comments, questions and recommendations.
